

Döner-Trainer - Instructions

EIA II - Prof. Jirka Dell'Oro-Friedl

1. When starting the simulation, you can set how many people work in the shop, how many customers come on average per hour, how large the capacities of jars and containers are and how much "idle time" the employees need in order not to get over- or underwhelmed. Now fill some forms and start the simulation.
2. Here comes your first customer! In order not to make them angry try to fulfill their wishes. Those are displayed on the right. Don't make them wait too long though, as it makes them irritated (and your workers nervous).
3. Click on containers to add ingredients to the order. Empty? No problem: click on jars to refill your containers.
4. You can delete ingredients from the order if you make a mistake.
5. Sometimes you need to restock your jars. Click on the refill button, the manager will take care of the rest.
6. Click on finish button to hand the order over.
7. The number of dishes sold so far are displayed above canvas.
8. Don't slack off – the day will be over faster than you can say "Döner".
